GIRL DESERTED BY "MILLIONAIRE HUSBAND"

Ex-Secretary Says U. S. Official Attacked Her

SEEKS ARREST OF ATLANTA;
HAS WITNESS,
SHE DECLARES

Man She Accuses Is Collector of Internal Revenue for Atlanta District.

STORY LAID BEFORE COURT

Woman Making Charges Is
Thirty-five and a Sunday School Teacher.

By International News Service.
ATLANTA, Ga., July 8.—Charges of a highly sensational nature, alleging a series of criminal assaults, were made here today in the United States District Court by Mrs. F. O. Cooper against J. T. Rose, collector of Internal Revenue for Atlanta district. Mrs. Cooper is Rose's former secretary.

Rose Reported in D. C.
Simultaneously it was learned that Rose has been absent from his office for more than a week.

Attaches of his office said he had gone to Washington in an unofficial capacity. Federal Judge Carter, before whom the charges were made, declined to issue a warrant for Rose, stating he intended to make a full investigation before taking any steps.

Mrs. Cooper's attorney, in laying the case before the court, alleged that the first attack on his client took place in an ante-room to Rose's office in the Federal building last March and that Rose several times attempted to repeat the attack.

Witnessed by Two Men.
Two men were alleged by the attorney to have witnessed the attack. These, he said, are C. H. Whittington, formerly chief office deputy, and L. H. Crawford, vice chairman of the Republican party in Georgia. They watched the attack, it was said, through a frosted glass window.

Mrs. Cooper was employed in Rose's office immediately after his appointment, but some time later applied for transfer to the income tax division.

On one occasion, according to the complaint, Mrs. Cooper rushed from Rose's office with her clothing disarranged and her hair down, and told another employee that Rose had assaulted her.

Mrs. Cooper is about thirty-five years old and is a Sunday school teacher and organist in a suburban Baptist church.

Strikers Beat Workers
In Sacramento Streets
SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 8.—Chaos in three different sections of the city in which one man was reported severely beaten by strikers, marked developments in the railroad strike situation here today.

The strikers succeeded in turning several workers back. It was said, officials of the Southern Pacific admitted today that fewer men reported to work in local shops.

Air Service Man Killed In Quarrel Pit Accident
LAWTON, Okla., July 8.—Private C. March, member of the Air Service, was killed and three other privates were seriously injured today when a gravel pit near Fort Ord, Okla., caved in, burying the workers.

March's home is at Moulton, Okla. The men were hauling gravel for roads at the aviation field.

Moratorium on Debt to Allies

By International News Service.
LONDON, July 8.
An unconfirmed report from Berlin this afternoon said that Germany had asked the allies for a moratorium. The report could not be confirmed in official circles either here or in Paris.
A dispatch from Paris said Germany proposes to meet her 1922 payment, but will ask the allies for concessions in the 1923 and 1924 payments.

HERRICK TO OPERATE AIRPLANE IN FUTURE

Not Willing to Trust to Army
Lieutenant, He Declares.

By International News Service.
ENID, Okla., July 8.—A little thing like an airplane crash is not going to prevent Congressman Manuel Herrick from soaring above the heads of his constituents, turning aerial flip-flops, and making them gasp at his side-slips and tail-spins.

That was Herrick's declaration today after the "aerial daredevil of Congress" had reached this city to begin his campaign for re-election. Herrick came by ordinary railroad train yesterday instead of dropping from the skies in his chariot of the air, because his plane did a pancake smack to earth near Hamlin, Ark., and was somewhat wrecked.

Responsibility for the crash, Herrick checked up "strictly to my mechanical" in giving out first-hand details of his fall.

"If he had banked her into the wind instead of away from it, we would have made it all right," he declared.

"And from here on I am not going to trust my machine to any army lieutenant—I am going to fly it myself."

"If I hadn't had presence of mind when we crashed, we might be corpses," Herrick continued. "I was shutting off the spark to keep the gas tank from blowing up while we was falling."

"I'll say we was lookin' into eternity when we went into that tail spin," he declared, as he proudly pulled out a pair of aviation goggles from his pocket. "I'm keeping these to show the people of the Eighth district how near they came to having no Congressman at all."

2 Sentenced to Hang
For Georgia Slayings

ATLANTA, Ga., July 8.—Georgia justice accented in three localities today with lightning-like rapidity and three negroes felt the strokes.
As the Fulton county grand jury was indicting Maggie Fields, negro, for murder on a charge of burning her husband to death, Superior Court Judge Humphries was sentencing Luke McDonald, negro, to hang for cremating his wife. Immediately afterward, Judge Humphries sentenced Robert Matthews, one-legged negro, to hang for a murder committed last December.

McDonald was convicted for having thrown a lighted lamp at his wife while she was sleeping. The oil ignited the mattress and she burned to death.

The Fields woman is charged with having poured gasoline on her husband and touching a match to his clothing. He ran into the streets screaming and died in a hospital.

Rail Strike Disorders
Charged to Detectives

Private Detectives hired by the railroads were blamed yesterday by William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, for disorders incident to the strike of shopmen.
The strikers, Johnston said, had explicit orders not to indulge in violence or to destroy property,

GHOST OF WOMEN
HAUNTED STEWART

Unfrocked Pastor Asserts He
Was Driven to Drugs by Apparition.

ADMITS WEDDING 4 GIRLS

Psychologists Say It Is Striking Case of Man With a Dual Nature.

BOSTON, July 8.—The ghost of a jilted sweetheart who had committed suicide, and who is said to have haunted his every step and drove him to seek refuge in memory-numbing drugs, is blamed by Donald Stewart, unfrocked minister, for his chain of bigamous marriages, stealings, and fraud plots.

Theory of Defense.
A synopsis of this defense for his trial here for bigamy in connection with his marriage to Miss Norma Ehrenseller, of Jamaica Plain, is being prepared.

The man who admits he wedded four different girls, says he did so while his brain was befuddled by the ghost-chasing opiates. But he may never face a Boston court, because just as the police started for Los Angeles to bring him to this city word was received that he had disappeared immediately after he had been liberated there on a writ of habeas corpus several days ago. Mrs. Ethel Turner Osbaldeston Stewart, his last wife and alleged accomplice, who was arrested with him in the Western city, is still in jail.

The ghost first appeared to Stewart, according to his defense-to-be, shortly after Mrs. Maude Hendricks, of Heyward, Calif., shot and killed herself because he failed to reciprocate her affections and refused to make her his wife. Stewart was still a member of the ministry in good standing at the time, detectives assert, and living under his rightful name of Brawne. He had been living with Mrs. Hendricks in a San Francisco hotel while her lawful husband, an engineer of the Western Pacific Railroad, continued in blissful ignorance of the situation.

Deposed for Escapade.
The first information the woman's husband had of her dual life with Stewart, who then lived under the name of Browne, was contained in a death note addressed to the minister, in which she upbraided him for his failure to keep his promise to marry her and for smashing her hopes of continued happiness with her engineer husband. Stewart was arrested and tried on a statutory charge following the suicide, but aside from severe censure from the jury he escaped without punishment. A short time later he was deposed by the Presbytery, of which he was an ordained member.

Though Mrs. Hendricks was dead, her ghost remained on earth and first appeared to Stewart, he declared, a few months following the suicide. At frequent intervals the specter visited him, followed him, haunted him here, there, everywhere he went, awake and asleep, until his mind almost snapped under the strain, he says. Do what he could, go where he might, he could not shake off the thing that pointed accusingly at him, he said, and finally, he bought a narcotic in the hope he might gain a few hours of uninterrupted sleep.

Car, Carrying 7 Men,
Jumps 43-Foot Cliff

COALWOOD, W. Va., July 8.—Cecil and Harle Frost and five others, while car riding, went over a cliff eight miles above Welch. The cliff is perpendicular and by actual measurement the car jumped forty-three feet, swayed twice and then went about the same distance into Elkhorn river. Eye witnesses were there and picked the men up taking them to the Welch hospital where they received medical attention. They were badly bruised but the exceedingly strange thing is, no one was killed.

More Ear But Less Leg, Now
Shown in Paris

International News Service.
NEW YORK, July 8.
FEMININE ears, long hidden through a vagary of fashion, are again making their appearance in Paris, but as the ears appear, the legs disappear, according to Mrs. Irene Castle Tremaine, dancer and movie actress, who arrived from Europe today on the Cunard liner Berengaria.
"The American woman who goes to Europe wearing the short dresses seen on the streets here immediately finds herself out of style," said Mrs. Tremaine. "Not only are women dressing their hair so as to show their ears, but earrings are coming back into general fashion again."

LA FOLETTE FLAYS
G. O. P. TARIFF BILL

Says McCumber Measure Will Be Millstone Around
Party's Neck.

By International News Service.
Renewing his attack on the McCumber tariff bill, Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, a Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee, yesterday charged that the measure, if passed, "will be a millstone around the neck of the Congress and the party responsible for it."

"No just tariffs can be made at this time," said La Follette. "Any duty laid down on the cost of production and cost of conversion to duty will not be right ten days from now."

"Doesn't that show there should be an elastic tariff?" interposed Senator Edge (Rep.) of New Jersey. "No," replied La Follette. "It shows this is not the time for a general tariff revision."

La Follette called attention to the Taft tariff commission's report which termed the cotton schedule in the Payne-Aldrich bill "too high." "I will show the duties in the McCumber bill, now before us, are even higher than the duties condemned by the Taft tariff commission," he added.

BANKS BUY COPIES OF GLASS SPEECH

Gov. Harding Denies Government Is Paying Cost of Its Circulation.

SENDS LETTER TO SENATE

Reserve Board Regarded Document as Fair Statement of Facts.

By International News Service.
Gov. W. P. G. Harding, of the Federal Reserve Board, in a letter to the Senate yesterday, in response to a Senate resolution, defended action of the Federal reserve banks throughout the country in distributing a speech delivered by Senator Glass (Dem.) of Virginia, which was a defense of the reserve system.

Governor Harding declared the distribution of the Glass speech was financed out of the funds of the different reserve banks and involved no cost to the Government. He said the board "assumes responsibility for commending the speech to the Federal reserve banks for circulation."

Answer to Charges.

Governor Harding referred briefly to "insinuations and charges," made on the Senate floor, reflecting upon the integrity and official conduct of members and officials of the system, but said that it was not within the province of the Federal Reserve Board to reply to these criticisms.

Harding said the board's sole purpose was to secure the widest publicity of Senator Glass' speech, not because it attacked Senator Heflin (Dem.) of Alabama or any other Senatorial critic, but because the speech was regarded by the board as a "fair presentation of facts," concerning the operations of the reserve system and its policies. Governor Harding continued:

"Neither the Board nor the Federal Reserve banks regarded the speech as being an attack upon any Senator, and were not interested in it from that point of view. It was commended to the banks for circulation because it was an answer made in the Senate chamber to charges which had been made on the floor of the Senate. It is a clear exposition of the policies, functions and operations of the Federal Reserve system during a critical period, and is an important contribution to current economic discussion."

Banks Bought Copies.

"To the Federal Reserve Board it has appeared that for the past two years much that has been said under the guise of criticism of policy has not been intended to help, but to discredit, the management of the Federal Reserve system through attacks upon the integrity and purpose of members of the Federal Reserve Board and of officers and directors of Federal Reserve banks. These attacks have been so repeatedly made and have had such publicity as to justify the suspicion that they are a part of a concerted movement against the Federal Reserve system."

Governor Harding explained that the different Federal Reserve banks purchased copies of the speech at one and three-fourths cents per copy from the Government printing office, as the speech was a public document and was on sale by the public printer at a specified price.

GIRL DESERTED;
POLICE SEEKING
"MILLIONAIRE" WHO WON LOVE

Pittsburgh Waitress Lured by Promise of Marriage and Great Wealth.

Letters Said to Indicate Others
Have Been Meanly
Tricked.

The portals of love and undreamed wealth swung wide to the enchanted gaze of nineteen-year-old Helen Aden two weeks ago in Pittsburgh.

They clanged shut yesterday, as she sat listlessly in the rooms of the Prisoners' Aid Society, 509 E. street, and gazed at the symbolic scraps of a marriage license her Prince Charming had told her was theirs.

Police Seek Man.

And meanwhile, the police of this and other cities spread a net for Hayes Walker, described as of many names, but of one intent—the playing of that most cruel confidence game where the honor and savings of young girls are the stake.

"O, I believed in him," the girl said in the dull tones of lost hope. "It wasn't so much for myself I wanted the life of ease he promised, but for my poor mother and the other seven children. They're all younger than I and about all we had coming in was my wages as a waitress. Now that's gone—and even $50 I saved and had given him."

The girl is too stunned to make any move. Not so, however, the police and Earl R. Dudding, head of the Prisoners' Relief.

Girl Deserted Friday.

The case of the so-called Hayes Walker will be taken up by the district attorney's office Monday, and it is hoped he will be under arrest by that time. He deserted Helen Aden Friday.

From his baggage, recovered at the Hotel Belvedere, Baltimore, comes indications of other girls being tricked. There are names, and letters, and the detectives declare they are tracking "one of the slickest workers in the United States."

A charge of white slavery will meet him when he is apprehended, and there may be others in other cities.

The girls' narrative has the ring of entire truth. Her home, she says, was at 334 Cherry street, West Homestead, Pa., a suburb of the great steel center. She was a waitress in a Pittsburgh restaurant. It was there she first encountered Walker on the evening of June 25.

"You are not the sort of girl that should have to do this work," he opened, according to the girl.

"He told me to come to the Fort Pitt Hotel," she continued "and he'd see about giving me a job at $125 a week. I called on him—he had a beautiful suite, and he was always wonderfully dressed. After we had talked about the new work a while he said: 'You're the very kind of girl I want to marry.'"

"We went out to see mother, and he told her he wanted to marry me and would settle $1,000 a month on her. It seemed unbelievable, but then he had the appearance of being a multi-millionaire."

"On June 27, he and I went to Harrisburg, and in the meantime he showed me a marriage license, though I couldn't see the names on it. At the State capital he made inquiries and then told me that 'all the clergymen had gone on a picnic.' I should have had sense enough to turn back right then—but I went on."

"We reached Baltimore and put
